

Rosalie Gascoigne
1917-1999

Survey of the life, work and achievement of the New Zealand born artist Rosalie Gascoigne. Follows the productive, yet brief career of this unique “late developer” whose career blossomed during the last decades of her life. Gascoigne’s innate curiosity and her willingness to challenge expectations relating to materials, form and modes of presentation allowed her to create an exciting body of work that is characterised by a sensitivity to the visual and tactile beauty of the natural environment and an acknowledgement of the hidden qualities often overlooked in man made objects.
